Native Offerings

*Pechanga Ancestors knew kwíila, acorns contained important healing properties. Kwíila, Acorns are healing for the body inside and out. They also soothed burns, rashes and reduced other skin inflammations. Oak tree acorns provided life-sustaining nourishment for Ancestors and is a food medicine continued to be used today. Pechanga Ancestors know how to extract the insides of the acorn, grind it into a flour and make Wíiwish that proved a favorite food to eat.

JOURNEY OF THE PAYÓMKAWICHUM (Zero Gravity Soundscape Relaxation Experience)

Journey through the indigenous lands of the Payómkawichum, the native people of the Temecula valley since time immemorial. *Services employ Native botanicals. Pechanga people use Náavut - prickly pear or cactus fruits - for a multitude of health reasons such as boosting immunity, its high fiber content, and promoting healthy skin and overall good health. Benefits of prickly pear on the skin include its anti-inflammatory and anti-aging properties, reducing dark under eye circles and more.

KWÍILA RENEWAL BODY TREATMENT

Acorns from the sacred oak tree provide nourishment and life for the Payómkowichum. This dual strength service incorporates the healing and well-being elements of the kwíila (acorn) Pechanga ancestors knew hundreds and thousands of years ago. The 50-minute treatment includes an exfoliating body scrub followed by a relaxing and stress-relieving acorn oil full body massage.
